DESCRIPTION

Hoboken-Nahunta County Site Removal Bill (Brantley County), Ms 2692 (M), includes four items all relating to the Hoboken-Nahunta County Site Removal Bill such as a Petition for Mandamus, a bill explanation, a statement by Secretary of State S.G. McLendon, and a fact sheet about Hoboken, GA. The Georgia county of Brantley was created in 1920 with Hoboken as the county site. In 1923 the town of Nahunta held an election and became the new county site, sparking a controversy from which the Hoboken-Nahunta County Site Removal Bill originated.

PRELIMINARY DESCRIPTION
Letters to Mr. Hodgson from Calvin Coolidge, Warren G. Harding and governors of various states re: the $1,000,000 Alumni drive in 1921.

SUBSEQUENT HISTORY
Coolidge and Harding letters pulled and put in vault in box labelled "Autographs of the Presidents of the United States."

LOC: See above. Others in Mss. # 524
A three-page manuscript copy of Joseph Hoag's famous "Vision," which he saw in 1803 and which prophesied the Civil War, among other "divisions." This copy was made by D. D. Miles in 1841 from the original manuscript carried by Joseph Hoag when he was travelling on a missionary tour in Ohio in December of 1841.

Present copy is dated St. Louis, Dec. 15, 1897.

Biographical Sketch of Hoag is included - copied from DAB, Vol. 9, pp. 85-86.
Harry Hodgson, an 1893 University of Georgia Graduate, helped to establish and direct the million dollar memorial fund of the 1920's as well as helping to establish the School of Commerce, now the College of Business.

Harry Hodgson worked with the Union Fertilizer Company of Warrenton which he later merged into the Hodgson Cotton Company and then into the Hodgson Oil and Refining Company. The final company was Hodgson's, inc.

This collection of pictures of his University classmates, scrapbooks of personal and business interests, and various business papers reflect the growth of Mr. Hodgson and his companies.

Holladay, Howard
Howard Holladay slide collection, ca. 1958-1967
1 linear ft. (1,539 slides)
Arranged by subject

Howard Holladay was a businessman who at one time lived in Augusta, Ga. This collection consists entirely of his slides taken from around 1958 to 1967. Box 1 consists of images of a variety of subjects including people and places in the Southeast, California, and unidentified locations. Of particular interest are 38 slides of a golf parade in Augusta, Ga. in 1959. The golfer Arnold Palmer can be seen on a float in a few of the images. There are also slides of a University of Georgia home football game, college fraternity life, and various leisure activities. Box 2 consists of slides taken on several trips to places in Europe and Asia, including the Middle East.

A folder inventory follows on the next page.

Hooker, Joseph Dalton, Sir, 1817-1911.
5.75 linear ft.

Arranged in alphabetical order by surname.

The collection consists of papers of Sir Joseph D. Hooker from 1828-1909. His wife, Lady Hyacinth Hooker evidently removed letters from her husband's files and created a collection of letters, photographs, and autographs of their contemporaries. Addressed mainly to Hooker, the letters are from members of the Linnaen Society and the Royal Society of Arts, botanists, natural historians, statesmen and politicians, artists and literary figures, royalty, and European and American notables. The correspondence relates to Hooker's work at the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew, botany in general, and the Hooker's social activities.

School of Journalism, University of Georgia

Description: Contains ca. 400 letters and 100 autographs or photographs of prominent individuals from Victorian times, people of fame in areas of science, politics, the arts, literature, the clergy and the military. Included are John J. Audubon, Florence Nightingale, Queen Victoria, Lucien Bonaparte (son of Napoleon III), William Cullen Bryant, William B. Donne, and Lady Byron, to name only a few.
This is a bound manuscript mathematics notebook of Master William Hodgson kept at the Reverend B. Ash's Academy Retford. The first page has a sketch of a corpulent gentleman holding a violin. The notebook begins with "Mensuration, continued, Problem 7." The handwriting, figures, numerals, and printing are beautifully done. There is a poem "Life's a Puppet [sic] Show" from Berenger, copied from "Metropolitan Magazine", and at the end of the book is an incomplete sketch of a soldier on horseback. No Academy Retford shows up in Georgia in 1833.

DESCRIPTION
Luna Thomason Holcomb, born in 1891 in Texas, became interested in genealogy when she wanted to join the Daughters of the American Revolution. During the 1930’s and 1940’s, she traveled over much of the South, wrote anyone who might have information, and hired researchers to help her. She started with the Ingram family (her paternal grandmother), but also recorded all connecting names. The major part of the collection concerns the family names Ingram, Thomason, and Holcomb, but there are many other names included.

In 1980 Mrs. Holcomb’s son gave her research material to a distant relative, Griffin Chesser, who sorted through the material with the help of a genealogist, Watson Dyer. The material was later donated to the Hargrett Library by Mr. Chesser’s daughter. Mrs. Holcomb’s date of death is unknown. Although Mr. Dyer states 1940, there are letters written to and from her as late as 1950.

The papers are arranged in alphabetical order by family name. There are many rough notes with several family names on one page. Some of the notes are typed, and whenever possible, the rough notes are placed with the typed copies. Many of the pages of correspondence and notes have been separated since the original research was done, and are now incomplete. Each family name includes any related correspondence, because much genealogical information is included in many of the letters.

In addition to research material and correspondence, the collection includes clippings, names and addresses of researchers, and research reference sources.
The Hooker Collection comprises ca. 5 shelf feet, (ca. 1,700 items) and ranges in dates from 1793 [1830's - 1880's] to 1908. Lady Hyacinth Hooker, wife of Sir Joseph D. Hooker, completed at least four autograph albums of prominent people. The majority of the items are of Victorian English men and women. Two albums were devoted to members of the Linnaen Society and the Royal Society. As well as natural historians, Lady Hyacinth also collected statesmen and politicians, artists and literary figures, royalty, and European and American notables.

The majority of letters are addressed to Sir Joseph Dalton Hooker [1817-1911] and date from the 1830's to the 1880's. Lady Hyacinth evidently removed these letters from her husband's files. She also collected letters and autographs dating from the eighteenth century. These are directed to a variety of addressee's including: William Jackson Hooker; Hycinth Hooker; George Betham; Sir William Jardine, Lady Hyacinth's first husband; members of the Carpenter family; and Sir Henry Ule.

Joseph D. Hooker [1817-1911] was a botanist, traveller, and close friend of Charles and Thomas Henry Huxley. Darwin Hooker's career began aboard the Erebus on her Antarctic Expedition 1839-1843. From the botanical specimens he collected, Hooker published six volumes on the flora of the areas he visited. He travelled extensively visiting India and Nepal, Egypt, Morocco and Lebanon, and the United States. He was appointed assistant director of Kew Gardens in 1855. When his father Sir William Jackson Hooker [1785-1865] died, he became director. He retired in 1885 to Sunningdale where he continued his research and writing. Hooker authored many studies of flora.

Hooker's scientific friends spanned the globe and are present in this collection of correspondence. Subject content deals with social activities, identification of botanical specimens, scientific news, and local events. The albums also contained photographs, cartes de visite, illustrations and printed items.

The items were all removed from the albums. The collection was divided into two series. The first consisting of one box containing individual autographs, photographs and illustrations. The letters were placed in alphabetical order by correspondent and filed in a second series. They fill eleven boxes. These folders also contain autographs, photographs and illustrations.

12.107 Miscellaneous – Mss relating to portrait and engraving of Robert Brown
12.108 Miscellaneous – Humboldt’s voyage records
The horn book received its name from the thin, translucent layer of horn which was placed over the simple text to protect it from children's little fingers. The text was usually the alphabet, the arabic numerals, and the Lord's Prayer, which was written or printed on a piece of paper. The example here is a modern day reproduction and is accompanied by a descriptive sheet.

Housed in Vault Box 2A.
DESCRIPTION Dr. Henry Carr Hornady (1822-1893) served as pastor of the Atlanta First Baptist Church from 1861 to 1867. He was a co-editor of the Landmark Banner and Cherokee Baptist after this paper was moved to Atlanta in 1861. Rev. Hornady opened perhaps the first school for boys and girls in Atlanta after Sherman's departure when the Second Baptist Church school began operations on 27 February 1865. The three-page letter here, dated 31 July 1867, is to a young boy and shows clearly Hornady's compassion and understanding as he describes for the boy the death of an Atlanta lady and God's everlasting love.

DESCRIPTION  Collection consists of 13 boxes & 5786 items of material on the Randolph & Howard family lines of Virginia & Georgia, supported by printed material, charts, correspondence, photographs. The material was compiled over many years by Lucy Howard & her sister, Pauline H. Comer of Athens, GA.

See guide to collection.

L. Aaron 10/1989
The genealogical collections consists of 13 boxes and 5786 items of material on the Howard and Randolph family lines of Virginia and Georgia and some European connections. There are many inter-related lines in both families and between the families. The Randolph family was separated by family name, usually the daughter's married name, when practical, but the researcher should remember that there is material through both lines and a certain folder may not be all inclusive. The Howard boxes have charts that run consecutively through the family from the earliest date and they are in order as much as possible, using the numbering system assigned probably by Ms. Howard.

In box 6-B are two folders of Comer notebook material - this was in a book with Pauline Comer's name on it and was left practically intact except for some pages which had been burned or had water damage and needed to be copied. Again, there is material on several lines in the notebook.

There are a few photographs, correspondence and several copies of other genealogies and several bound volumes. A post card collection has items sent to Lucy plus those she probably bought.

The collection was compiled by Lucy Howard & her sister Pauline H. Comer of Athens, GA

Dec. 1990. ca 200 items added, including business/legal papers, correspondence Comer family material, mss copy of Sketch of Cobb Legion Cavalry, photos of Lucy Howard.

1991 - added material includes following Bibles - Comer, 2 Glenn, Randolph; 9 photos, ALS dated 9 Nov 1898; box of photos.

Howard Manufacturing Company (Columbus, Ga.)
Howard Manufacturing Company records, 1848-1861.
138 items.

Arranged in chronological order.

Howard Manufacturing Company was a textile company manufacturing goods for the southeast and northeast located in Columbus, Georgia.

The collection consists of correspondence addressed to John Banks or James B. Parr from customers and potential customers of the Howard Manufacturing Company (Columbus, Ga.). Many of the letters are orders for goods manufactured by the company or requests for information about certain goods and prices. Most of the letters are from towns within a one hundred mile radius of Columbus, but others are from Nashville (Tenn.), New York (N.Y.), Philadelphia (Pa.), and Mobile (Ala.).

Cite as: Howard Manufacturing Company (Columbus, Ga.) records. Hargrett Rare Book and Manuscript Library, University of Georgia Libraries, Athens GA 30602.

Howard Manufacturing Co., begun in 1847, had a building 125' x 48' and 5 stories high to run 5000 spindles, 75 looms and employ 100 hands in the manufacture to sheeting, shirting and yarns. It was purchased by Eagle Mfg. Co. in 1860.*

This correspondence shows only incoming orders but from many locations. Most of the requests are addressed to Jas. R. Parr. Perhaps the most interesting is the diverse way of payment for the merchandise.

folder 1) Incoming correspondence, 1848-March 1860, ordering items mfg. by the company. 57 items.

folder 2) Incoming correspondence, April 1860- 40 April 1860. A few mention the sale of the company. One is an order for twine. 44 items.

folder 3) Incoming correspondence, May 1860-May 1861. 37 items.

DESCRIPTION

Written when Atlanta's hometown poet was 84 years old, this letter of 26 January 1919 discusses the activities of the Burns Club of Atlanta and the anniversary of Burns' birthday. Hubner encloses a two-page poem, entirely in manuscript, titled "The Birthday of Burns". It closes "He gave to earth the gift God gave, /And still for us sings from the grave."

Hubner, called by Bertha Sheppard Hart "the Whittier of the South," was for many years the literary editor of the Atlanta Journal. His War Poets of the South and Confederate Camp Fire Songs was suggested to him by his service as a Confederate soldier. His loyalty and love for the South is shown not only in this work but also in his Representative Southern Poets. His method of treatment of these poets shows his familiarity with their words, a skillful use of judicial criticism and an appreciation of poetic art.

DESCRIPTION:

A very large collection (more than 15,000 items) consisting for the most part of the papers of Dudley M. Hughes (1848-1927), a prominent Georgia agriculturist and United States Congressman from 1909-1917. In Congress Hughes was Chairman of the House Committee on Education and co-author of the Smith-Hughes Act (the Vocational Education Act).

The bulk of these papers deal with Hughes' agricultural enterprises, congressional campaigns, and congressional patronage. There are also a large number of letters from Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, while in Washington, to their children in Georgia. There are few valuable autograph items in this collection, but two Woodrow Wilson letters are outstanding. Though there is much routine correspondence, a careful study of this collection is essential for a true understanding of the politics of agriculture in the New South.

See: Dictionary of American Biography, IX, 348, for a sketch of Hughes.

Hunter, Nathaniel Wyche, 1811-1849.
Nathaniel Wyche and Sarah R. Hunter papers, 1820-1869.
1.5 linear ft.

Arranged by record type.

Nathaniel Wyche Hunter (1811-1849), graduated from West Point (1833), served in the U.S. Army during the Florida Wars and Mexican War in Company H of the 2nd Regular U.S. Dragoons. Married Sarah R. Golding of Athens, Georgia in 1846.

The collection consists of papers of Nathaniel Wyche and Sarah R. Golding Hunter from 1820-1869. The earliest correspondence (1840-1843) is to Sarah R. Golding from family and friends, mainly discussing Athens social life and their experiences at school. The majority of the collection is comprised of correspondence (1843-1846) between Hunter and his fiancee and later wife Sarah R. Golding while he served in the 2nd Cavalry (Dragoons) of the U.S. Army, particularly during the Mexican War. His early letters discuss mostly their budding romance, but later letters describe camp conditions, travel to Mexico, the Mexican countryside, and engagements of his unit. Includes letters from the Augusta Arsenal (Ga.), Fort Columbus (N.Y.), Fort Jessup, Corpus Christi (Tex.), and Camargo (Mexico) with details on the Battle of Palo Alto and Reseca de la Palma (May 1846). The collection contains some official military correspondence such as orders, memos and correspondence documenting the actions of John E. Wool, Zachary Taylor, Irvin McDowell, William Joseph Hardee, and John S. Wood.

The papers also include diaries kept by Hunter from October 1-15, 1846 discussing his trip to Mexico and another from February 21 - March 12, 1848 describing his command of American troops near Monterrey (Mexico); and a diary kept by Sarah G. Hunter from 1848-1849 mainly describing Athens (Ga.) social life and the death of her husband.
